

February 2023

Brook Farm Group, an Atlanta-based national multifamily development company, has hired Juliana Capalbo as director of operations and finance and Anthony Ranallo as construction director. Capalbo, who is based in the company's New York office, has 15 years of professional experience and is overseeing the firm's operations, including accounting, information technology, human resources and investor reporting. In addition, she is actively involved in both asset and portfolio management, as well as capital markets activity. Capalbo previously served as an outsourced COO/ director of accounting and finance manager for 35+ startup clients across various industries. Ranallo has 10 years of experience in construction project management, supervising multifamily, institutional and commercial projects spanning multiple states. For much of his career, he has focused on multifamily capital replacement projects as an owner's representative. Ranallo is based in the Atlanta office and previously managed the Atlanta Regional Office for Eastern Construction.